V.V. Giri National Labour Institute

Sector – 24, Noida (U.P)

Context

Education plays a significant role in facilitating social and economic development of every society. It is a fact that there has been a major thrust on education since the independence. Quality education in rural India has always been the biggest challenge for the policymakers.

Educated human resource is a prerequisite for sustainable growth every society. Right to education has played a significant role to enhance the society's wisdom.

In one's life cycle, an individual goes through a process of continuous learning which is a key to fundamental change in social process. It helps individuals to adapt to the changes in the environment by building themselves on the previous experience which serves them as a guide to the actions and decisions. It is also considered to be a relative permanent change in behaviour or capability, which is the result of experience.

An educational system in rural communities has the opportunity to build capacity and knowledge in the rural populace, helping them to make informed decisions about their farms and to innovate in agricultural and related affairs. Education also exposes the mass to information and helps prevent the misinterpretation of information

A significant proportion of the total workers in India are rural workers. Contributions of this section are considerable in the country's development but researches on the condition of rural workers reveals that there is still much more to be done to enhance their living and working conditions. A major proportion of them dearth in quality education and organizations. Both these factors together have eroded their capacity to participate in the development process. Evidence shows that an educated rural work force has not only helped growth of the country and society but also the workers themselves.
